

2020 UC Core Competency Model for Staff Employees

Developed by:
UC Talent Management Consortium Workgroup

Endorsed by:
Chief Human Resources Officers, June 20

Background

In 2011, UC Learning and Development leaders, Systemwide Human Resources, and location Chief Human Resources Officers developed and endorsed a UC Core Competency Model for staff. The competency model was adopted at various locations across UC. Various locations chose to adapt modified versions of the model.

In 2018, per best practice, the Human Resources Leadership Consortium (Systemwide HR Leaders and location Chief Human Resources Officers) charged the UC Systemwide Talent Management Consortium, a group consisting of leaders from UC's talent acquisition, talent development, compensation, and organization development functions from campuses, health centers, Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory, Division of Agriculture and Natural Resources, and Office of the President., to review and update the competency model. The result of their work follows.

The purpose of the 2020 UC Core Competency Model for staff is to serve as the basis of UC's integrated talent management strategy. Establishing core competencies at the systemwide level helps staff employees understand how UC views talent and promotes behaviors that reflects UC's vision and values. They build the foundation for the culture we want at UC. Developing a competency framework also provides for a consistent set of behaviors and shared language that can be used across the talent management life cycle, including, but not limited to:

- Employment, including job descriptions, job postings, recruitment, and selection
- Compensation, including position classification and job family design
- Performance Management
- Career Development
- Succession Management

The updated 2020 UC Core Competency Model describes expected performance behaviors of staff and managers of staff at the University of California, where seeking excellence in mission accomplishment is the standard. Additionally, the core competencies described in this model are expected to be demonstrated by all staff employees of the University, regardless of location, level or role. People manager/leader behavior standards are additive expectations for success at UC.

It is important to note that the categories and the titles for the competencies were chosen in a very thoughtful, purposeful, and deliberate manner – with a significant amount of discussion and feedback. The workgroup strived to develop a model that is accessible and easy to understand for all UC employees.

The 2020 UC Core Competency Model was reviewed and endorsed by the Human Resources Leadership Consortium (HRLC) at their June 2020 Meeting

UC Core Competency Model Overview
